Thank you for giving the gift of a Friendship Pack

When a family lives only on what they can grow and it's not enough to feed them, that's called subsisting. Subsisting is not really the same thing as living; it's not an abundant life of resources, resilience, and possibilities. World Renew wants what God wants for all of His children: a more abundant life that includes resources and resilience, good health and enough food.

Your gift of a goat and two ducks — a Friendship Pack — can make abundance a possibility for someone who is merely subsisting. Animals boost a family's nutrition and, with proper care, produce offspring that add to their income. With better health and income that can include things like medicine, school fees, or building materials, a family can move beyond subsistence to wellness and even thriving.

In Kenya, drought and lack of grazing land left Mrs. Wangui Kinna unable to keep her cow alive, and she didn't know how she was going to care for her family. She readily accepted a goat from World Renew and training in its care, and she is delighted by how little water and active care it needs. The goat's nutritious milk and twice-yearly kiddings have made it an excellent alternative income source for Mrs. Kinna, and she has better health and some time for her family because of her reduced workload.

In Bangladesh, Akhil Biswas invested all he had in a starting duck farm, but when the ducks began to die, he didn't know why and had no one to ask. His wife had to find work, his son dropped out of school, and Akhil wrestled with despair. When he heard about an opportunity to get the training he lacked, Akhil eagerly joined World Renew's agricultural program and learned to care for ducks, to diagnose disease, and to vaccinate a flock. He even received a small loan to invest in purchasing more ducks — this time he was armed with knowledge that could help him succeed. Now, Akhil has paid back his loan, reinvested his profits, and he is a successful farmer with 600 ducks!

World Renew's ministry helps people like Mrs. Kinna and Akhil experience the wholeness, wellness, even transformation that God intends for them. Your gift makes this abundance possible.
