Thank you for helping moms help other moms

In rural Kenya, Gertrude was working hard to provide for her children. She was anxious about her youngest child and felt that he wasn't growing properly. So when she learned about a World Renew maternal and child health project in her community, she eagerly joined.

World Renew is passionate about health for children. We operate maternal and child health projects in many countries we serve. Over 165 million children worldwide suffer incomplete brain, body, and immune system development due to poor nutrition that will leave them challenged for life, less likely to be educated, less likely to earn enough income to live.

But when children get proper nutrition before their second birthday, they can avoid these deficits and experience a more abundant life. Community health volunteers are one of World Renew's essential partners in providing women and babies with prenatal and postpartum care focused on the first 1,000 days of a baby's life. Local people who are passionate about abundant life for their children and their neighbors' children are eager to learn and go out to serve.

Your gift of training for a community health volunteer allows that person to walk alongside a mother and her children before and after pregnancy. Training teaches a volunteer how to measure a child's height and weight at monthly visits, looking for signs of malnutrition while offering nutrition education, coaching in breastfeeding, and mentoring for mothers.

In rural Kenya, community health volunteer Drucilla walks many miles from village to village, visiting the mothers in her care and teaching them about hygiene, sanitation, nutrition, and even agriculture. Drucilla visited Gertrude monthly, screening her children for malnutrition and helping her find ways to better feed her family. You can meet Drucilla and Gertrude at www.worldrenew.net/gertrude and see for yourself the opportunity for wellness and abundance that you are making possible.

Checkups for moms and babies promise healthier bodies and brains, stronger immune systems, and more abundant life for little ones.

THANK YOU
