Thank you for giving the gift of one-acre farming

In Uganda, 84 percent of the population lives on the produce they can grow. The line between subsistence and adequacy is very thin. When a farmer has poor seed, or no training or no support, their family may not eat each day. But with good seed and the right training and support, along with some hard work, families can have enough food and income, leading to improved health and even education.

Investing in farmers is a powerful way to fight hunger, increase food security, and stabilize families in Uganda and around the world.

World Renew works in agricultural programming in countries where we partner with people who are working hard to make their lives more abundant. In Uganda, World Renew's food security programs help household farmers feed themselves even amid the growing challenges of climate variations, water insecurity, and soil depletion. World Renew works with local partners to share conservation agriculture practices like composting, natural fertilizing, crop rotation, and mulching — and we support farmers with access to markets and collective marketing as they sell the crops. Your gift of a one-acre farming starter kit includes seeds, fertilizer, access to small loans, and the training and support that provides farmers a foundation for success.

Grace has been learning about conservation agriculture from one of World Renew's Christian partners in Uganda. With the support of a one-acre farming kit she is getting different results than she used to, despite climate challenges. "During this past season," she says, "we had too much rain, but practicing mulching has helped me control soil erosion, and I see a big difference in the results." She estimates that without the support she has received, she might have earned 20,000 shillings (about $5 USD) this year — but instead she has earned almost 20 times that much. Abundance!

Your gift of one-acre farming offers Ugandan farmers like Grace the opportunity to live more productively and abundantly.

THANK YOU
