FACTS ON POVERTY

THE IMPORTANCE OF PARTNERSHIP & A HOLISTIC APPROACH

As 2021 came to a close, the UN projected that the COVID-19 pandemic had pushed another 143-163 million people around the world into poverty. 2020 was the first year since 1997 when the total number of people in poverty globally increased. Sadly, current calculations project that by 2030, an additional 50 million people will still be in poverty compared with pre-pandemic projections.

In our estimation, that outcome is unacceptable. And, through gifts from generous-hearted people like you, it is avoidable. However, the issue of poverty is multifaceted and often complex, intensified by a number of concerning trends brought on by COVID-19: an increase in the number of people experiencing hunger, outbreaks in conflict due to limited resources, elevated unemployment levels, inability of farmers to sell their crops at market, an increase in gender-based and domestic violence, continued spread of COVID-19 and other diseases due to scarce water and inadequate hygiene.

Together, these factors create a cycle of harm that threatens to bind communities in poverty for generations.

But that doesn't have to be the story. Thanks to World Renew's model, our staff and partners on the ground work with local churches and communities to help them identify existing strengths and access the support they need to create stable sources of food, clean water, and income. We also work with these communities to adapt to threats like climate change, natural disasters, and violence so they can weather setbacks like COVID-19 with greater ease.

CECELIA'S PATHWAY OUT OF POVERTY

Through locally sourced and community based development, donations like yours touch over a million lives each year. But we think the impact of each gift is best described story by story.

One of those stories includes Cecelia Naveia: a young woman whose life changed for good in 2021 through World Renew. Cecelia lives in Milange, Mozambique, where she raises vegetables to feed her family. After joining a World Renew savings group in her village, Cecelia's community loaned her the funds to buy two additional fields where she could plant corn and soybeans: leading to more stable income and food for her family. Through that investment, Cecelia not only paid back her loan within a year, but she also earned $190 in profit, an extra income of six months, from her work. This income opens up pathways to better housing, education for her children, and future investments in clean water to keep her family healthy and her crops thriving.

Your choice to walk alongside World Renew helps people like Cecila to recognize themselves as image bearers of God and to live into the plans God has for them to glorify him. Let's glorify God together by ensuring all his children can access pathways out of poverty.

GATHERING PHYSICALLY

CREATIVE CAMPAIGN IDEAS FOR PHYSICAL GATHERINGS

Engaging your congregation on the topic of poverty can be as simple as a few announcements.

But, if you want to make more of the week leading up to World Renew Sunday, try some of these ideas for both the young and young-at-heart.

ENCOURAGE ENGAGEMENT

A visual display in a high-traffic area always catches people's attention. Consider involving your congregation in imagining the pathways of hope that God desires for all of us. Set aside a wall in your sanctuary or fellowship area with a large ream of butcher or craft paper that says "Pathways to Hope." Make sure to have colorful pens/markers nearby for people to use. Then, during your first World Renew Sunday announcement, encourage members young and old to visit the wall and add a phrase that is personal to them and represents a longing they have for the world. People can fill the blank in with whatever connects with them: "healing," "clean water," "justice," "love," "safety for girls," etc. If you have a bay of windows in your space, you can do the same thing with window markers. Watch the messages build over the next two Sundays and celebrate the phrases on World Renew Sunday. (Tip: this activity can inspire some great content for a Sunday morning sermon and worship set).

GATHERING DIGITALLY

CREATIVE CAMPAIGN IDEAS FOR DIGITAL GATHERINGS

Engaging your congregation on the topic of poverty can be as simple as a few announcements and distribution of devotionals.

But, if you want to make more of the week leading up to World Renew Sunday, try some of these ideas for both the young and young-at-heart.

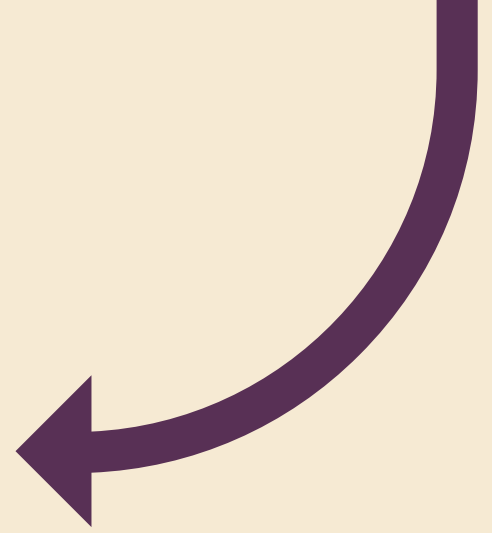

ENCOURAGE ENGAGEMENT

The Sunday before World Renew Sunday, invite members from your congregation to share what “pathways to hope” means to them by writing on a piece of paper “A Pathway to _____.” People can fill the blank in with whatever connects with them: “healing,” “clean water,” “justice,” “love,” “safety for girls,” etc. If members of the congregation choose, they can then snap a picture holding their sign and email it to the email address you provide. Partner with your tech team to share a different image each week on your Facebook page or create a slide-show set to music to highlight your congregation’s beliefs about flourishing and justice. Then, encourage your congregation to talk about the experience together. You can share your pictures with World Renew by tagging us @WorldRenew.

SET THE SCENE

When you shift the design of the banner images on social media and your church's website, it makes an impression on your community: insighting curiosity, signaling significance, and creating buzz. Feel free to use the slides available at pathwaysoutofpoverty.ca or pathwaysoutofpoverty.com to help generate the image of your choice.

MARK THE MOMENT

Host a digital coffee hour on your church's preferred video conferencing platform to discuss global poverty and what is stirring in the hearts and minds of your congregation. You can even contact World Renew to have a member of our Church and Community Engagement team attend and share more about the overall impact of poverty and what small acts like giving and prayer do to make a big difference. Reach out at info@worldrenew.net

MAKE A LITTLE MORE

If you're looking to really encourage giving, consider inviting a member of your congregation to create a brief video with their phone sharing why they give to support World Renew. You can then post the video to social media through Facebook live and share it over email. Often, we all feel encouraged to give when we see someone we know leading the way!
